PROFILE

A proactive and ambitious IT student with a strong academic background and a passion for technology. Proficient in various programming languages with hands-on experience in developing software applications and websites. I also possess a solid understanding of computer networks and database management especially the My SQL. Through the various class tasks and the personal projects I have demonstrated ability to quickly grasp new concepts and technologies. Am Committed to continuous learning and professional development therefore actively seeking opportunities to expand skills and knowledge in emerging areas of IT. Lastly, am eager to leverage my academic achievements and practical skills to contribute positively to a challenging IT environment and gain valuable real-world experience.

WORK EXPERIENCE

I committed my time during my education to developing my abilities through practical projects and participation in pertinent events. In order to nurture my problem-solving and teamwork skills, I actively engaged in coding competitions where I worked with colleagues to create creative solutions to programming issues. I assumed the responsibility of managing a team project that required gathering requirements, designing, implementing, and testing a web-based application. These experiences improved my knowledge of programming languages like HTML and CSS and gave me useful insights into software development processes. My commitment to independent study and my active participation in real-world initiatives show that I'm ready to make a significant contribution in a formal IT setting.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN,

 Hello there, I would like this opportunity to request for a chance to work in your organization where I can find the chance to practise the skills that I have obtained throughout my studies here in the university. With the skills acquired mostly in the practical aspects of the course, I will do my assigned duties to the best of me. Am open minded, self-driven and motivated not to forget about being open to learning new experiences in my day to day professional life.

Devoted to lifelong learning and career advancement, I'm constantly looking for ways to increase my knowledge and proficiency in cutting-edge IT fields. I promise to work in the various projects and in alignment with the cultures of the company in order to be a productive member of the organization as possible. Thank you

SINCERELY,

DENNIS OUMA OCHIENG
